

mariko & michael

Mariko & Michael met in medical school at the University of Alberta. They and many of their guests were just graduating at the time of the wedding. It was definitely a multi-cultural affair – the bride is half Japanese & half Filipino and the groom is from Chile. In their spare time they love golfing, watching movies and going out for dinner as well as travelling to hot places when they get the chance. Both are very close to their families and had all of their siblings in their bridal party. They had 7 attendants each.

Mariko fell in love with the crystal & bronze trees and really wanted hot pink as one of their colours. The décor and overall feel of the wedding needed to be as modern and spunky as the bride & groom with just enough tradition to pay homage to their cultures. The black tables were adorned with fuchsia florals and crystal trees awash in orchids. All the printed materials, from the invitations right through to the table numbers, were created just for the couple and added a great punch of colour to the tablescape. There was a fabulous martini luge which matched the gobo on the dance floor and everything was up-lit in hot pink.
